

ABSTRACT

A fire resistant roofing tile which utilizes economical materials and is formed using an efficient manufacturing technique. The tile has components shaped to prevent fire spread significantly enough to achieve a Class A fire retardation rating. Recycled materials are used in a compression molding process for commercial appeal and benefit to the ecology.